

Sweet TREATS

BAZAAR presents a charming romance of theatre, music, and sparkling little novelties.

STAR-CROSSED

Hollywood hottie Orlando Bloom and Tony Award-nominee Condola Rashād play William Shakespeare's most famous lovers in Romeo and Juliet. Director David Leveaux has hinted that he has a few surprises in store for the audience. "The last thing we wanted to do was to do a sort of pompous, classic version of Romeo and Juliet," said Leveaux. "I'm just taking away all the wallpaper and mantelpieces, all the kind of pompous stuff we associate with grand Shakespearean productions, and try to go as simple as possible." Runs through November 24 at the Richard Rodgers Theatre, 226 West, 46th Street, New York. www.richardrodgerstheatre.com

LET THEM EAT CAKE

Bisou Weddings has launched its fourth collection of divine wedding cakes. Imagine the most tasteful confections, covered in up to 300 handmade blossoms as seen on the Adeline, Daisy, and Candy cakes. And then there's the romantic Sophie, dressed in pure white lace with touches of gold. Also inspired by the delicateness of lace, Abby is a dream of pearl sugar beads, tiny flower garlands, and satin ribbons. Finally, Grace literally takes the cake with its bold paisley pattern and pretty petals. www.bisou.com.my
