

Jahabar Sadiq and Antoine Bakhache

ANTOINE BAKHACHE, 45, Managing director, Bakhache Luxuries Sdn. Bhd.

You start the day by ... Walking Lola (my Golden Retriever).
Style icon? Warren Buffet. I learned from him how to make it big and how to give back when it is time.
Reading? The last 100 e-mails in my inbox since I came back from vacation.
Listening to? Fairuz, my favourite singer of all time.
Your heroes? Believe it or not, no one.
Your best friend would say you're ... Fair (I hope).
Your father said? Don't postpone til tomorrow what you can do today.
How do you de-stress? Play with my kids.
A place you love? North of Italy.
Are you a collector of things? Antique cameras and single malt whiskys.
Languages? Arabic, French, Thai, Hindi ... a bit of English.
What you love best about your work? Everyday something new.
Travel is ... The best school for all members of the family.
Desert island question? We are in the 21st Century, people don't get deserted on islands anymore.

Bront Palarae and Joe Flizzow

JAHABAR SADIQ, 45, CEO & editor, The Malaysian Insider

First thing ... Two glasses of water, then the messages and e-mails and tweets.
Style is ... A Brit aesthetic. Think the Avengers, Bond, a well cut suit, a snazzy tie, cufflinks, and a decent pair of boots.
On your bedstand? Heaven on Earth: A Journey through Shari'a Law and the graphic novel Get Jiro by Anthony Bourdain.
Listening to? Frank Ocean's "Thinkin Bout You".
The heroes? Rumi the poet philosopher. Einstein the scientist.
Your best friend would say you're ... Flighty.
Lessons your father taught you? Be laconic.
How do you de-stress? Walk, gain trust, and snap pictures of different people.
A place outside of Malaysia you love? Berlin.
A collector of? Comics, cameras, Swiss army knives, and phones.
Languages? English, Malay, Cantonese, and Tamil.
